To begin with, it is about your psycho-geographical experiences and reactions. Within a given area, we can detect the zones that you feel attached to, and that you know how to situate yourself in it.

The zones will be later identified on the map to find out the overall relationship of these points. The linkage to be made among these randomly chosen places could reveal the inter-related hidden realms of everyday life in the given area.

If time allowed, we may go on to add small pieces of works in one or two most connected points to demonstrate the foreseeable conditions there.
